

AMTA Senior Member Criteria

The criteria for being named a Senior Member are through technical or service contributions to the field of antenna measurements. These contributions can be in either the form of 1) technical publications in the field of antenna measurements or 2) service on the AMTA Board of Directors or volunteer committees. In order to be eligible for Senior Membership, a member must have been active in the field for at least a period of 10 years; however, continuous AMTA membership throughout a 10-year period is not a requirement.
